Marape: Start focusing on other sectors

THE PNG Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) project is a myth that confuses us, says Finance Minister James Marape.

The minister said this when speaking at the 2015 PNG update forum at the University of Papua New Guinea in Port Moresby.

Mr Marape, who is Tari-Pori MP, said most people think with LNG in production the country will have a cascade of money that can answer for all its developments.

"LNG contributes 30 per cent at most and with the current depressed global oil prices, possibly 20 per cent, so people should start focusing in other sectors like agriculture, fisheries and tourism," Mr Marape said.

"Our government is now putting money into infrastructure like ports, and we're also investing money on electricity to increase power watts throughout the country; these are enabling infrastructures that will stimulate growth in other sectors."

He said while the Government intervenes to develop other sectors through the budget and policy outlook, people must contribute through their attitude.

"We sit in the phase of an Asian demand for energy and food and going into the future maybe clean water; we can't ignore these opportunities.

He said last month the cabinet gave clearance for agriculture incentives to allow large scale commercial agricultural investors coming into PNG.

He encouraged developments in agriculture and also pointed out the potential in the tourism sector.

"The biggest contributors in tourism alone can be our people," Mr Marape said.

"If they can learn to stop littering, support a good law and order environment, we can bring half of the 800,000 plus Australians who go to Fiji every year, to PNG instead.

Lihir landowners against delay of review by miner

LANDOWNERS of the Lihir Gold mine are against further delays to the review of the integrated benefits package (IBP) and memorandum of agreement (MOA) projects.

The landowners in a paid advertisement had said the review had been set for July but had been moved forward by Newcrest to September.

This is one of several key issues the landowners had been aggrieved over resulting in the placement of the gorgor at the mine site and subsequent disruptions to the operations at the mine recently.

Normalcy has since been restored to the operations.

Authorities had hailed the actions as illegal with Newcrest stating that although there would be some lost production as a result of this incident, production guidance for Lihir for financial year 2015 remained unchanged at 680 to 720koz.

The statement which had been signed off by the President of Nimamar Local Level Government Ambrose Silul and executive chairman of the Lihir Mining Area Landowners Association (LMALA) James Laketen said their stance on the review remained unchanged.

"Our position on the revised agreement is to commence the Lihir Agreement Review Process in June and for it to be finalised and executed in September 2015.

"Mineral Resources Authority (MRA) as the regulator and Newcrest must understand that this is a non-negotiable priority. Just as the company will not entertain services without a contract, the landowners should not allow the company to operate without a written agreement in place," the President said.

Other issues the landowners are alleging are breaches of the IPB agreement in relation to the review and maintenance of current businesses earmarked for resource owners of Lihir, escalating environmental issues and outstanding MOA projects for Nimamar LLG and the New Ireland Provincial Government.

The gorgor policy was developed in 2008 to ensure disputes are resolved amicably.

The leaders said the gorgor notice was endorsed and placed with the blessing of the two mandatory key stakeholders and not a subset of minority groups as claimed by the developer.

CMCA funds real estate investment

BY DOMINIC KRAU

TWO significant real estate investments for the people of Western Province were opened in Kiunga on June 12.

They are the Ok Tedi Development Foundation's (OTDF's) office complex and associated staff housing estate.

These are two of eight investments, which were funded by the shared Community Mine Continuation Agreement (CMCA) Investment Trust Funds.

These investment projects are all generating a minimum eight per cent annual return on the investment for the CMCA people.

The office complex was constructed for K8.52 million and K6.84 million for the housing estate - a total of K15.36 million, returning in excess of K1.5 million per annum in lease payments from OTDF.

The office complex has 52 work stations and 15 offices while the housing estate consists of seven three-bedroom houses and 12 two-bedroom units.

The other investments include two series 400 twin otter aircraft, three ships, and the soon to be constructed Cassowary Hotel, set to be an architecturally iconic structure for Western Province.

Contractors Tawap Kamen Investments Limited and Tabubil Engineering built the office complex and housing estate respectively.
